The Warlock

13th Age 2nd Edition Gamma Playtest version - DRAFT V0.12

<<Begin sidebar>>

This is a playtest version of the warlock class for 13th Age, Second Edition, Gamma playtest version.
The 13th Age first edition version of the warlock can be found in Dark Pacts and Ancient Secrets. If you're familiar with that version, there are some major changes here.

- The new Faustian Bargain class feature means your pact now has an impact on icon relationships.
- Curses now last until the end of your next turn by default; no more save rolls.
- Strike melee attack spells replaced weapon hexes.
- Curses now use d6 damage dice, blasts d10 damage dice by default. Blasts no longer add your Constitution modifier to damage.
- Most hexes are now once per arc spells.
- Malediction (+2 critical range when attacking cursed enemies) is now a talent, not a class feature. In return, you get a fourth talent at 6th level (like the fighter)
- New class features: Warlock's Familiar and Eerie Glow

<<End sidebar>>

The warlock is an arcane spellcaster who taps directly into the power of an icon, by signing a pact with them. While this may seem like the shortcut to great power, someone like the Diabolist or the Crusader is a dangerous ally and an even more dangerous master to serve. Gaining your powers required no innate magic ability, no deep religious beliefs and no diligent study, but there is always a price to pay, which may ultimately be your soul.

Overview

Play Style: The warlock specializes in dealing with tough enemies, weakening them with curses and then dealing concentrated damage with blasts or melee attacks. You're not quite as durable as dedicated melee classes, but you have tricks up your sleeve to stay alive, make it harder for enemies to attack you, or punish them if they do. Unlike squishier casters, you like to be in the thick of things.

Ability Scores: A warlock's main ability score is Charisma, which they use for all their spells as well as flourishing melee attacks. You'll also find that some talents and spells use Intelligence for additional effects, so a good score there is helpful too. If you're looking to go the melee route, a decent Constitution helps too, not just for survivability, but also the Banestrike talent.

Backgrounds: Unlike other spellcasters, who usually have some sort of background to represent their training, warlocks can come from all walks of life. Some may have a history with the icon they formed their pact with, maybe as a member of an affiliated organization.

Feel: A lot of the warlock's theme is fighting fire with fire, and ends justifying the means. Even if you made your pact with a "good" icon, you're still a representative of their ruthless side. You're a sycophant for making a deal with a powerful entity, and you're still angsty and rebellious about it. Zip around the battlefield and let it all out by cursing your enemies, and blasting and hacking them to pieces.

Kin: Tieflings are the classic pick for warlocks, but members of any kin can become desperate and strike a deal with entities they probably shouldn't meddle with. Most kin treat a warlock with suspicion though.

Icons: Given their direct mystical connection, icons play a much more important role in a warlock's career than most other classes. See the Warlock's Pact entry below for details. Warlocks often serve ambiguous or outright evil icons, which doesn't make their life any easier.

Backgrounds: An exiled court jester has failed their master in an attempt to overthrow the king. A stage charlatan is hiding greater powers behind petty illusions. An escaped slave of the orc mines has traded their soul for freedom. A baby-faced farmhand is out to avenge the death of their parents. A corrupted wizard apprentice could not resist the book their master tried to hide. A sunburnt hermit of the Red Wastes found an old staff in a tomb. The elven noble touched by the fey can steal your heart with a wink. The gladiator with a dark past has a scar to remind them of their bargain. The street urchin who talks to rats has no idea who they are really talking to.

Class Features

Warlock Pact

What defines the warlock is their pact. Unlike other characters, where their relationship to an icon is an ideological affiliation or a position in their organization, a warlock taps into the mythic powers of their pact lord directly.

With an icon that represents demonic powers, that could be a literal contract signed in blood. It could be a hereditary bloodline. It could be the result of a dangerous ritual performed by a secretive cabal. There is plenty of room to tie this into the character's backgrounds and One Unique Thing. Forming the pact could be a mutual agreement, but it could also be that the character (or even the icon!) had no choice in the matter. Likely the pact wasn't signed directly with the icon themselves, but one of its most powerful followers.

Rules-wise, a warlock's pact lord could be any of the icons, but flavor-wise, it would usually be a villainous or at least ambiguous icon.

In case of a villainous icon, ask yourself whether the character shares those evil leanings or not. If they do, how did they end up on the heroic side? Do the party's goals align with theirs, at least for now? Even the most blackhearted evildoer understands the value of allies, especially when the far future goal is to overthrow your master and take their place.

Or is your character trying to fight fire with fire? In case of an ambiguous icon, likely the pact lord is following a philosophy that the ends justify the means, which would explain how a character ends up using dark powers for a heroic purpose.

For a good-aligned icon, a bit more backstory is required. Do the warlock's powers represent a side of the icon that they don't show? Is the character related to an inquisition or similar organization that fights the icon's enemies with all means necessary? Or is the warlock's existence a sign that the icon may not be as good-natured as the public believes? Could their powers even be a corruption or perversion of the pact lord's nature?

Pact Power

Depending on your choice of pact lord, you gain a power that you can call upon once per battle.

For icons other than the ones below, talk to your GM to determine how a warlock pact could work flavor-wise and how it can fit the campaign.

The Diabolist

Deals with devils are a classic trope, which makes the Diabolist the most iconic choice for a pact. As the most villainous of the icons however, the big question here is whether the PC is on a redemption arc or whether we're narrating the path to downfall of someone who was too ambitious for their own good.

Burning Hellfire

Once per battle, when you hit with an attack, deal half damage as fire damage to a number of other random nearby enemies equal to the escalation die.

Adventurer feat: You can use this ability recklessly. Deal damage to 1d3 additional targets, but 1d3 nearby allies also take one fourth of the damage.

The Crusader

Usurping dark powers to fight fire with fire is the Crusader's very identity, which fits right into the warlock's theme, especially if you go the martial route. The Crusader is a powerful, but demanding and ruthless master though. Expect trouble and difficult choices ahead.

Fist of Wrath

Once per battle, as an interrupt action when you are staggered or brought to zero hit points by an attack, make a warlock spell attack against the attacker. If you are brought to zero, you fall unconscious after your attack.

Adventurer feat: Gain advantage on the attack roll.

The Lich King

Warlocks don't summon undead like necromancers, but their powers could be related to undead such as vampires, wraiths, liches, and banshees. You could be a member of a cabal that is trying to unlock the secret of eternal life.

Feed on the Weak

Once per battle, as a free action when you hit an enemy with a spell or melee attack, you can spend a recovery to heal. Deal extra damage equal to the recovery roll.

Adventurer feat: If you have three or more skulls, maximize the dice of the recovery roll.

High Druid

Many shamanic traditions channel the powers of nature spirits. Not all of these spirits are benevolent, especially with civilization encroaching on their turf, and you could have your powers from them.

Lashing Thorns

Once per battle, as an interrupt action, when an enemy deals damage to you, deal poison damage to it equal to half the damage you took.

Adventurer feat: You now deal full damage back to the enemy.

The Great Gold Wyrm

The Wyrm's body is slowly consumed by demonic corruption. By channeling that power, you relieve some of his pain and hopefully do some good in the process.

Halcyon Shield

Once per battle, as a free action when an enemy hits you with an attack, reduce the damage to half.

Adventurer feat: When using this power, you also gain a bonus to all defenses equal to the escalation die until the end of your next turn.

The Prince of Shadows

The Prince's strengths are in subterfuge, lies and deception, but a warlock's powers are often showmanship as much as raw power. So what's going on here? Are you posing as a regular wizard or sorcerer, while using gifts that the Prince stole somewhere?

Shady Trade

Once per battle, as an interrupt action when you are attacked by an enemy, roll a d20. You can either switch that roll with the opponent's natural attack roll, keep it for your own next attack roll, or discard it.

Adventurer feat: When the escalation die is 2+, roll two d20s.

The Elf Queen

While elves and fey relish in beauty and playful pranks, there is also a darker side to them. Stories are full of fey creatures striking unfair bargains and cursing those who cross them.

Blink of the Fey

Once per battle, as an interrupt action when attacked by an enemy, roll a d20. If your roll is equal to the natural attack roll or higher, teleport to a nearby location and the attack has no effect on you.

Adventurer feat: Add the escalation die to your roll.

The Three

Some dragons share their power through complex magical contracts in the ancient draconic tongue, to reward their agents and spread their reach into the Empire. Depending on the dragon, you might be driven by the Red's aggression, the Blue's curiosity, or the Black's subterfuge.

Wyrm's Cunning

Once per battle, as a free action, reroll an attack with a warlock spell. Add your Intelligence modifier to the reroll.

Champion feat: If the reroll is a miss, you regain this power when the escalation die is 3+.

Faustian Bargain

You roll and use icon relationships like any other character, but your pact lord is always paying attention. Whenever you are about to use an icon relationship, with any icon, the GM can take the role of the pact lord and offer you a Faustian Bargain. You'll get something better! There's a small price, but really, don't worry about it. Everything your master will ask for is in our mutual benefit. You don't even need to roll for a complication! (Disclaimer: This doesn't state there is no complication, just that you don't roll)

For example, the warlock Kruxas has just tried to use their trusty Phoenix Fire to incinerate a nasty orc brute, but unfortunately the dice came short. Now they're calling upon the Archmage for a reroll. But wait … why not ask your master, the Crusader instead? Why accept a piddly reroll when you can have a guaranteed critical hit? Now if you reduce that orc to zero hit points, it wouldn't die, it would rise again as a loyal servant of the Crusader! Talk about a mutual benefit!

Or if you use a relationship with the Emperor to get invited to the local baron's hunt for a white stag, your master the High Druid might offer you the blessing of their stag if a little accident ends the hunt. Nothing serious, let the baron break a leg when falling off their horse.

Now, some GMs might use this to push the icon's hidden agenda, plant plot hooks or introduce some consequences down the road, but rest assured your GM is your friend, and it's all for a good story.

Warlock Spells

Warlock spells come in several types - Blast, curse, strike and hex. The first three, blast, curse and strike are attacks you'll want to use in combat. These spells are at-will. Your pact grants you a near-unlimited font of magic, and you never need to worry about running out of spells.

Blasts: Damage-focused ranged spells. Typically uses BLAST for damage, equal to 1d10 per level (+10/+20/+30 at epic tier).

Curses: Usually deals CURSE damage, equal to 1d6 per level (+10/+20/+30 at epic tier). Most curses have two effects that they inflict until the end of your next turn. They put the cursed condition onto the target, which is relevant for certain spells and talents, and a second effect that debuffs the target in some way.

Strikes: These spells are melee weapon attacks. They are mainly for dealing damage, but some of them are also curses.

Hex: Utility effects. These provide a variety of effects, such as protection, mobility or social interaction benefits. Most of these can be used once per arc.

Warlocks gain the standard weapon level damage progression extra damage at epic level (+10 at 8th level; +20 at 9th level; +30 at 10th level) not only to weapon damage, but also to their spell attacks.

Some spells have a “hit by 5+” or similar entry. This means the effect triggers if you beat the target’s defense by 5 or more.

Implements

Warlocks use arcane spellcasting implements such as wands and staffs. You can also use a magic weapon as an implement with strike spells.

Adventurer feat: You can use a magic weapon as an implement with any warlock spell.

Cursed (Condition)

When you hit an enemy with a curse spell, that enemy is cursed until the end of your next turn. By itself, the cursed condition doesn’t have an effect, but there are multiple talents and spells that tie into it.

Hit point threshold

Many curses have a stronger effect when cast against enemies whose current hit point total is at or below a certain number, the hit point “threshold”. The number is as below.

1st level: Target with 40 hp or fewer
2nd level: Target with 52 hp or fewer
3rd level: Target with 68 hp or fewer
4th level: Target with 80 hp or fewer
5th level: Target with 104 hp or fewer
6th level: Target with 132 hp or fewer
7th level: Target with 160 hp or fewer
8th level: Target with 208 hp or fewer
9th level: Target with 268 hp or fewer
10th level: Target with 320 hp or fewer
11th level: Target with 416 hp or fewer

Warlock Familiar

Your pact lord likely doesn’t trust you enough to run around unsupervised, so they’ll send one of their servants to watch over you. Icons are busy people, so at least for the first few levels, your familiar is probably the only direct connection you have to your pact lord.

The Diabolist is going to send an imp, while the Elf Queen sends a pixie, the High Druid a small animal like a bird or squirrel, the Three or the Great Gold Wyrm a tiny dragon; while the Shadow Prince might send a pair of eyes watching you from the shadows, the Lich King a floating skull, and the Crusader a floating talking weapon.

All warlock familiars can talk (at least to you). They are able to appear and disappear at will. Most of them can fly. Your familiar isn’t much use in battle (without the adventurer feat) and doesn’t have combat stats. It will probably tease you if you can’t get things done without help.

<<Begin sidebar>>

Unlike a wizard’s familiar, which is a bound helper, the warlock’s familiar acts more like a messenger and chaperone sent by your pact lord. Typically it should be played by the GM or another player, not you. Discuss with your GM whether it should only show up when there is something to talk to between you and the pact lord, or whether it is a permanent companion.

<<End sidebar>>

Adventurer feat: Your familiar has one ability from the wizard's familiar list, or the ability below.

Pesky Thief: Your familiar can steal small items for you. Treat this as a 3-point background.

Adventurer feat: Once per battle, your familiar can distract an enemy on your turn.

Familiar's Taunt

Close-quarters attack; Free action on your turn; Once per battle

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + level vs. MD

Hit: Roll a d6.

1. Damage equal to your level
2. Damage equal to twice your level
3. The target is cursed until the end of your next turn.
4. The target uses its next attack on the familiar (which will disappear before the hit)
5. The target is dazed until the end of your next turn.
6. The next attack against the target has advantage (roll twice and use the better result).

Miss: –

Eerie Glow

As a quick action, at-will, you can create a floating globule that emits a dim, eerie glow which is just enough to see and walk around without bumping into things, but not enough to feel comfortable.

Blood Ritual Caster

Warlocks can cast rituals similar to Wizards and Clerics. Unlike other casters who expend spells to cast rituals, you expend a recovery without healing.

Adventurer feat: When making a skill check to cast a ritual, gain advantage on the check if you make a sacrifice that pleases your pact lord.

Class Talents

You start with 3 talents. Choose an additional talent at 6th level.

Abyssal Armor

Use the second highest of your Constitution, Intelligence or Charisma modifier to determine AC instead of the usual ability scores.

Adventurer feat: You can also use your Constitution, Intelligence or Charisma modifier to determine PD.

Champion feat: At the start of your turn, when the escalation die is 2+, deal cold damage equal to twice your level to all enemies engaged with you.

Banestrike

Add your Constitution modifier (x2 at 5th level; x4 at 8th level) to damage with warlock Strike spells.

Adventurer feat: Once per battle, you can use a warlock Strike spell as an opportunity attack.

Champion feat: When using a warlock Strike spell against a cursed enemy, increase the damage dice by 1 step (so d10s for one-handed martial weapons and d12s for two-handed martial weapons).

Brutal Caster

When you score a critical hit with a warlock spell, deal triple damage (instead of double).

Adventurer feat: When you have at least one skull, increase your critical range by 1. If you have three or more skulls increase it by 2 instead.

Child of Doom

Increase the hp threshold of your spell effects by your Intelligence modifier multiplied by your level.

You also gain the Enduring Torment power below.

Champion feat: Whenever you score a critical hit with a curse spell, instead of dealing double damage, you can instead hit an additional nearby target that you didn't attack.

Epic feat: (replaces adventurer feat) Whenever you score a critical hit with a curse spell, you can hit an additional nearby target that you didn't attack (with a normal hit).

Enduring Torment

Close-quarters; At-will; Quick action

Target: One nearby cursed enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: Damage equal to your Intelligence modifier (x2 at 5th level; x4 at 8th level). Extend the effect of a curse spell on it until the end of your next turn.

Miss: –

Adventurer feat: If the target's hit points are below threshold, add your Intelligence modifier to the attack roll.

Double-cross

Through foolishness, a twist of fate, or machinations beyond your control, you ended up with two warlock pacts and two pact lords. You must have an icon relationship with both icons.

The advantage is that you have two pact powers from two different icons, and you can use each of them once per battle.

The disadvantage is that every time you roll for a twist when using an icon relationship point, the range is increased by one (so 1-6 for narrative and 1-11 for combat connections). You also probably have two familiars, and the bickering between the two has driven you to the brink of madness more than once.

Adventurer feat: Gain a 1d6 bonus to the first death save you roll in a battle. Someone isn't willing to lose their favorite toy just yet.

Champion feat: Gain a +1 bonus to MD. You're too used to being manipulated.

Hex Mastery

Choose a number of Hex spells equal to your Intelligence modifier for this talent.

You gain a bonus spell slot. Instead of locking in one spell for this slot during your full heal-up, you pick one of the chosen spells at the time of casting. If the spell is once per arc, the slot is expended. Otherwise you can cast the spell until your next full heal-up at its normal frequency.

Adventurer feat: If the chosen spell is cast once per arc, you can now cast it twice.

Champion feat: You now get two bonus spell slots.

Malediction

When you attack an enemy that has the cursed condition, add +2 to your critical range (a natural 18-20 is a critical hit).

Adventurer feat: When you miss a cursed enemy with a warlock spell, add your Intelligence modifier (x2 at 5th level; x4 at 8th level) to the damage dealt.

Champion feat: Once per battle, reroll a spell attack against a cursed enemy.

Epic feat: The critical range bonus is +3.

Pitchfork

Once per battle, when the escalation die is 2+, you can target two enemies instead of one with a ranged warlock spell.

Champion feat: Once per arc, when the escalation die is 3+, increase the number of targets to three instead.

Epic feat: (replaces champion feat) As champion feat, but one target per escalation die.

Soul Cleaver

Once per battle, after you reduce a non-mook enemy to zero hp with a warlock spell, you can attack a different nearby enemy with a warlock spell as a free action. If you are no longer engaged with an enemy you can move to engage an enemy and use a strike spell.

Adventurer feat: The attack roll has advantage.

Champion feat: You can now use this talent twice per battle.

Spreading Curse

When you curse a mook, all mooks in that group are affected by the curse.

Adventurer feat: Against mooks, your curses deal additional damage equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Champion feat: Once per battle, when the last mook in a cursed group is reduced to zero hit points, you can heal using a recovery.

Triskadekaphile

You have a special relationship to the number 13. A natural roll of 13 on a d20 roll is always a success for you. In addition, you can choose one of the following effects when you roll a 13:

- Heal using a recovery.
- If it's an attack roll, turn it into a critical hit.

Adventurer feat: As an additional choice, once per battle, on a natural 13 when you roll a save against a temporary effect, transfer the effect to a nearby enemy.

Uncanny Vitality

Increase your recovery dice to d8s.

Adventurer feat: Whenever you hit a cursed enemy with an attack, heal hit points equal to your level.

Champion feat: Increase your base hit points to 7.

Epic feat: Whenever you score a critical hit with a warlock spell, you can heal using a recovery.

Witchbow

You can use strike spells as ranged attacks with a ranged weapon. When you do, add your Dexterity modifier to damage (x2 at 5th level; x4 at 8th). You can use magic item ranged weapons as implements for these.

Champion feat: Against cursed enemies, increase your ranged weapon damage dice by one step (usually from d8s to d10s).

Spells

1st Level Spells

Bathed in Hellfire (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Until the end of the battle, gain resist fire and unholy (10+Con)+.

Adventurer feat: Choose a third resistance among acid, cold, poison and lightning.

Blessing of the Depths (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You and one ally per Intelligence modifier

Effect: The targets can breathe underwater and swim with the same agility and speed as a fish until the end of the scene.

3rd level: The effect lasts until the next quick rest.

Brain Hammer (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma + escalation die psychic damage

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level + escalation die

4th level: Double the escalation die damage bonus.

6th level: Triple the escalation die damage bonus.

8th level: Quadruple the escalation die damage bonus.

10th level: Quintuple the escalation die damage bonus.

Adventurer feat: On a critical hit, the target is dazed until the end of your next turn.

Break Open (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma force damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed and takes a penalty to AC equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Miss: Force damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If the target is hit by a critical hit against AC while cursed, extend the curse until the end of your following turn.

Burning Brand (Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma fire damage. Reroll 1s on the damage dice. If the enemy is cursed, also reroll 2s.

Miss: Fire damage equal to three times your level

Adventurer feat: Against cursed enemies, deal half damage on a miss instead.

Cold Steel (Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma cold damage. If the target moves or makes a nonbasic attack before the end of your next turn, it takes twice your level in damage.

Critical hit: Double the triggered damage.

Miss: Cold damage equal to three times your level.

Adventurer feat: On a critical hit, the target is stuck until the end of your next turn.

Eldritch Blast

Ranged spell; At-will

Always: Make two attacks.

Target: One or two nearby enemies

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: Half (BLAST + Charisma force damage). Also halve any additional damage.

Miss: Force damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: Once per battle, when the escalation die is 3+, make a third attack roll.

Eyes of the Fey (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Until the end of the battle or scene, you can see in the dark as if it was broad daylight. You can also see invisible creatures and objects, and lingering arcane enchantments from magic items and traps. You can see the magical aura around spellcasters and magical creatures. You have advantage (roll twice and choose the result) when making skill checks to notice or analyze these.

Hungry Shadows (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma unholy damage. Against a cursed target, increase the damage dice to d12s.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If you reduce an opponent below zero hit points, deal damage equal to your Constitution modifier (x2 at 5th level, x4 at 8th) to all nearby enemies.

Immortal Heart (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Until the end of the battle, you have advantage on Constitution checks, Constitution-based skill checks, death saves, and saves against ongoing damage. You also reroll natural 1s on recovery rolls.

Adventurer feat: Reroll natural 2s on recovery rolls.

Mark of Pain (Curse / Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and if it makes an attack against you, deal unholy damage to it equal to your Intelligence modifier (x2 at 5th level; x4 at 8th).

Miss: Damage equal to twice your level, and the target is cursed until the end of your next turn.

Adventurer feat: If the target makes an attack against you, extend the curse for another turn.

Mind-Body Warp (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. the higher of PD or MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma unholy damage. The target is cursed until the end of your next turn, and its PD and MD values are switched.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: You can now attack the lower of PD or MD.

<<Begin sidebar>>

PCs should generally be able to judge whether an enemy is tough / agile (higher PD) or strong-willed (higher MD), and the GM should share that information. A skill check may be required to see through a clever disguise.

Negative Feedback (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma lightning damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and if it ends its turn engaged with you, it takes the same damage from the curse again.

Miss: Lightning damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If the target ends its turn engaged with you, you can make a disengage check as an interrupt action.

Screaming Curse

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma thunder damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed.

At hp threshold or below: The target also takes a penalty to attack rolls equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Above hp threshold: As per below threshold, but the target can choose to take psychic damage equal to three times your level to ignore the effect.

Miss: Thunder damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: You can choose to cast this spell recklessly. Gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll, but if you miss, deal half CURSE damage to an ally engaged with the target.

Silver Tongue (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Gain advantage on Charisma checks and Charisma-based skill checks until the end of the scene. This spell also allows you to communicate with creatures associated with your pact lord. In case of the Diabolist and the Crusader, you speak Abyssal. In case of the Lich King, you can speak with Undead, including spirits of the recently deceased that might be around (just not visible normally). In case of the High Druid, you can speak with animals and plants. In case of the Three and the Great Gold Wyrm, you speak Draconic. With the Prince of Shadows, you can scramble your speech so that only his followers will understand. With the Elf Queen, you speak the languages of elves and fey creatures.

Slothbrain (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. The target is cursed and takes a penalty to disengage checks equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn. Creatures disengaging from the target get a bonus equal to your Intelligence modifier to the roll.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: The target also cannot intercept.

Spider Skin (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Until the end of the battle or scene, you can climb any surface with ease, including walls and ceilings. Your unarmed melee attacks do not suffer an attack penalty, deal poison damage, and the damage die is increased to d6.

Adventurer feat: As a standard action, you can create a rope of strong spider silk. You can use this rope to create a net, but this requires practice, time and patience.

Vitriolic Blast

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma acid damage, and damage equal to your Constitution modifier (x2 at 5th; x4 at 8th level) to a different nearby enemy.

Miss: Acid damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If the second target is cursed, deal double damage to it.

Warlock's Hand (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc; Quick Action

Effect: Summon a floating, disembodied hand that can move small objects. Moving heavier objects, or objects that are fastened or tied down, may require a Strength-based skill check. Difficult manipulations, such as picking a lock, require a Dexterity-based skill check. The hand stays around for up to 1d6 hours.

Warlock's Steed (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc

Effect: You summon a mount to carry you. The mount has the same speed and endurance as a packhorse, but its appearance will match your pact. The steed does not fight and does not have combat stats. If you treat it nicely, the steed stays around until the next full heal-up.

Epic feat: The steed can fly.

3rd level Spells

Brain Drain (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma psychic damage. Gain a +1 bonus to attacks and saves until the end of your next turn.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: Increase the bonus to +2.

Borrowed Appearance (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc

Target: One creature you touch

Effect: This illusion grants you the outer appearance of a creature you touch, including the face, skin, clothes and any carried objects. The spell cannot change your size by more than a tenth. In combat, touching a creature may require an attack roll against PD. You also mimic the target's voice with the help of the spell, and gain the ability to communicate in any language it speaks. The effect lasts until the next dusk or dawn.

Broken Will (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. The target is cursed and takes a penalty to MD equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If the target is below the hp threshold, it also takes a penalty to saves against conditions equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn.

Dissolve into Creepy Crawlies (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc; Quick action

Target: You

Effect: You change your body into a swarm of crawling insects until the end of the battle or scene. This allows you to crawl through tiny spaces and up and down walls. You cannot use weapons or cast spells in insect form. Attacks against AC deal half damage to you.

Adventurer Feat: You can fly in creepy crawly form.

Eyebite (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and if it attacks you, you can force it to reroll the attack and take the second result.

At threshold or below: The reroll has a penalty equal to your Intelligence modifier.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: You can also pop free from the target.

Frail Body (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit CURSE + Charisma unholy damage. The target is cursed and takes a penalty to PD equal to your Intelligence modifier until the end of your next turn.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: On a critical hit, if the target is below the hp threshold, it is weakened (-4 to attacks and defenses) until the end of your next turn instead.

Ghostfire (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma fire damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and if it makes an attack, it takes half damage from this spell again. (Attacks with multiple targets trigger the damage once)

Miss: Fire damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If the target is below the hp threshold, it takes full damage from the curse.

Grey Mist (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma cold damage. Gain a +2 bonus to your AC and PD until the end of your next turn.

Miss: Cold equal to your level

Adventurer feat: Gain the bonus to MD too.

Messenger (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc

Effect: You call upon a small creature to deliver a message for you. The choice of creature will match your pact, such as small imp, a minor air elemental, or a pixie. The messenger can deliver a spoken message or carry small items like a letter or a ring. It travels with the speed of a pigeon. The target of the message has to be known to you or your pact lord, but you do not need to know the target's current location. The messenger can deliver an answer back as part of the spell.

Misdirected Hatred (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and you choose one of your allies. The enemy will try to engage and attack that ally if it can. It can still attack other targets if it has no way to attack the hatred target.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: If the enemy misses the hatred target with an attack, it takes psychic damage equal to twice your level.

Phoenix Fire (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma fire damage. If you have at least two skulls, increase the damage dice by one step (d10s). If you have at least four skulls, increase them another step (d12s).

Miss: Damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: Gain the damage increase for one / two skulls instead.

Razor Cut (Curse / Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and whenever it is hit by an attack that deals WEAPON damage, the attacker adds one damage die (two at 5th level; four at 8th level).

Miss: Damage equal to three times your level

Adventurer feat: The first miss with a weapon attack against the target before the end of your next turn can be rerolled.

Shadow Servant (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; once per arc

Effect: You animate your own shadow into a three-dimensional being that can act and move independently of you. The shadow can perform menial tasks, but it's roughly as strong as an old man. It can't enter areas of bright light, but it can hide in darkness and move very quickly through dimly lit areas. It understands your commands, but it can't speak. If not dismissed or destroyed, it sticks around until your next full heal up.

In combat, the shadow has your defenses, but only has one hit point.

Siphoning Strike

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed. It takes a -1 penalty to PD and MD, and you gain a +1 bonus to MD and PD. At 5th level, increase the bonus and penalty to -2/+2.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to three times your level

Adventurer feat: If the target is at hp threshold or below, gain a +2 bonus to the attack roll.

Thirsty Steel (Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma damage. Gain hit points equal to your level. If the target is cursed, gain hit points equal to twice your level.

Miss: Your level in damage, and you gain hit points equal to your level.

Adventurer feat: Add your Constitution modifier (x2 at 5th level, x4 at 8th) to the hit points healed.

Venomous Spit (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma poison damage. The target takes half damage again at the end of its next turn, unless it spends a standard action to withstand the poison.

Miss: Poison damage equal to your level

Adventurer feat: This spell is a close-quarters spell.

5th level Spells

Brain Rot (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma psychic damage, and 5 ongoing damage.

Hit by 5+: Increase the ongoing damage to 10.

7th level: 10/20 ongoing damage

9th level: 15/30 ongoing damage

Miss: Psychic damage equal your level

Champion feat: You can reroll your first even miss with this spell in a battle.

Curse of Clumsiness

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. The target is cursed until the end of your next turn, and if it rolls a natural 5 or lower on an attack while cursed, it hits one of its nearby allies instead.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Champion feat: If the enemy rolls a natural 1, the clumsy attack deals double damage.

Decrepitude (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and its attacks deal half damage unless the attack roll is at least five points higher than the defense it rolled against.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Champion feat: Attacks now deal half damage unless they beat the defense by seven points.

Duplicity (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Teleport to a location you can see. You leave a mirror image of yourself behind. The mirror image is an illusion effect. It mimics all of your movements and gestures. If it takes damage, it disappears.

Champion feat: When your Mirror Image takes damage, roll a hard save (16+). If you succeed, the image persists.

Feeding Curse

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed. If you hit it with an attack, you can spend a recovery, but instead of making a recovery roll, you heal hit points equal to the damage dealt with that attack.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Champion feat: Also heal hit points equal to your level when hitting with this spell.

Frozen in Place (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma cold damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed.

At threshold or below: The target is also stuck.

Above threshold: If the target takes a move action, it takes the damage of this curse again.

Miss: Damage equal to your level

Champion feat: Anyone engaged with the target can pop free from it.

Possessed Weapon (Strike)

Ranged spell; At-will

Special: You must wield a melee weapon to cast this spell.

Target: A nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma damage.

Miss: Three times your level in damage

Effect: Roll a d10. If the result is lower than the escalation die, the weapon remains animated and you can make the same attack once on your next turn as a quick action. Otherwise it returns to your hand.

Champion feat: Add your Intelligence modifier to the attack roll if the target is engaged with an ally.

Shared Pain (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and if you take damage from an enemy attack, the target also takes half that damage.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Champion feat: Instead of yourself, you can choose a nearby ally for the damage trigger.

Vanishing Blast

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma psychic damage

Miss: Psychic damage equal your level

Natural Even Roll: Teleport to a nearby location you can see. If you also hit by 5+, you can teleport to a far away location.

Natural 1: You and the target swap places.

Champion feat: You can also teleport on your first natural odd roll with this spell in a battle.

Warlock's Lightning (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma lightning damage

Natural even hit (first attack): Make a second attack against a different nearby enemy. Deal half damage on a hit.

Miss: Lightning damage equal to your level

Champion feat: You gain the second attack on an even miss too.

7th level Spells

Blade Void (Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. AC

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma unholy damage. At the start of your next turn, deal unholy damage equal to your level multiplied by the escalation die to all enemies you are engaged with.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to three times your level

Champion feat: Once per battle, you may expend a recovery with the start of turn effect. If you do, gain hit points equal to the damage dealt (in addition to the recovery roll).

Mental Meltdown (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD; against cursed enemies, you have advantage on the attack roll.

Hit: BLAST + Charisma psychic damage

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Champion feat: If either attack roll is a natural 20, the target is confused until the end of your next turn.

Nightmare Fuel (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. The target is cursed until the end of your next turn.

Above hp threshold: In addition, if the target moves to engage you, it takes the damage from this spell again.

Below hp threshold: In addition, the target is dazed (-4 to attacks) and can't use the escalation die. It can't move to engage you, and it will try to disengage and run away if it is able to.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Champion feat: The first time you miss with the spell in a battle, you can reroll the attack.

Shadow Body (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Until the end of the battle or scene, your body and possessions are subsumed into your shadow. As a living shadow, you can blend into other shadows and vanish in darkness. You are stuck to surfaces, but can move along them freely, including walls, ceilings, and even liquids. You have advantage on skill checks to avoid being noticed. You cannot make physical attacks or manipulate objects, and you cannot cast spells. Attacks against you deal no damage, unless the damage is radiant.

Spell Eater (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed. If it makes a non-basic attack or uses a power it couldn't use when hindered, it must roll 1d6. On a 1-2, the attack or power fizzles and the action is wasted, and you heal hit points equal to your level.

At hp threshold or below: The attack or power fizzles on a roll of 1-3 instead.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Champion feat: On a 1 on d6, you can spend a recovery to heal.

Spiky Tentacles (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Special: If the target is staggered, you have advantage on the attack roll (roll twice and take the better result).

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma poison damage

Miss: Poison damage equal to your level against 1d3 other random nearby enemies.

Champion feat: Twice your level damage on a miss.

Unleash the Bees (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma poison damage

Natural even hit: If the target is cursed, make another attack roll against a different nearby enemy you have not attacked yet this turn.

Miss: Poison damage equal to your level

Champion feat: Gain a second attack on the first natural even miss against a cursed target.

Web of the Spider Queen (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD. Against spiders, the attack is always a miss.

Hit: CURSE + Charisma poison damage, and the target is cursed until the end of your next turn.

Natural even hit: If the target is at or below the hp threshold, it is also hindered.

Natural odd hit: If the target is at or below the hp threshold, it is also stuck.

Miss: Poison damage equal to your level

Champion feat: On a critical hit, the target is both hindered and stuck if at or below hp threshold.

Whirling Entropy (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: Until the end of the battle, when an enemy's ranged attack against you is a natural even miss, that attack hits a random nearby enemy instead.

Champion feat: This spell also affects close-quarters attacks.

9th level spells

Blood and Gore (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma force damage. If the target is currently taking any ongoing damage, deal that much damage to it, then it can save against that damage.

Miss: Force damage equal to your level

Epic feat: Against cursed enemies, deal half BLAST damage on a miss.

Dark Portal (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Once per arc

Effect: You open a portal to a realm that is connected to your pact lord. With a demonic pact, you would open a portal to a hell hole, or even the Abyss. With an arcane pact, the portal would open to the overworld. A divine pact would lead to the Cathedral. Note that the strongholds of icons usually have wards against teleportation, and you're more likely to end up outside of the gates than in the inner sanctum (unless that's where your pact lord wants you to go). Portals close after a few minutes.

Epic feat: You gain a second use of the spell per arc that opens a portal back to where you opened the first one.

Jinx (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed and attacks against it automatically hit if the natural attack roll is odd.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Epic feat: Any attack roll that is a natural 1 also hits the target instead if it is within range, even if it was not the initial target.

Prisoner of the Void (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma psychic damage, and the target is cursed until the end of your next turn.

At or below hp threshold: The target is also removed from the map and teleported into a prison dimension. It reappears on the map in the same location at the start of your next turn.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Epic feat: On a hit, if the target is above the hp threshold, half of its essence is sucked into another dimension until the start of your next turn. All its attacks deal half damage, but attacks against it also deal half damage.

Shrieking Banshee (Blast)

Ranged spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Special: Gain a +1 bonus to your critical range for each skull you have.

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: BLAST + Charisma psychic damage. If the target is reduced to 0 hp or below, repeat the attack against a different nearby enemy you have not yet attacked this turn.

Miss: Psychic damage equal to your level

Epic feat: Also deal 10 extra damage for each skull you have.

Vexing Steel (Curse / Strike)

Melee spell; At-will

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. MD

Hit: WEAPON + Charisma psychic damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed.

Miss: Three times your level in psychic damage

Epic feat: Add "Hit by 5+: The target is also dazed."

Warlock Wings (Hex)

Close-quarters spell; Quick action; Once per arc

Target: You

Effect: You grow wings, which allow you to fly with the same speed and maneuverability as a large vulture. You cannot hover, and require Strength checks to stay aloft over long periods. While flying, you take a –2 penalty to your attacks and you are vulnerable to attacks. The effect lasts until the end of the battle, or for about 1d6 x 10 minutes outside of battle.

Epic feat: You are no longer vulnerable while flying (but you still take an attack penalty).

Wound Mirror (Curse)

Close-quarters spell; At-will

Target: One nearby enemy

Attack: Charisma + Level vs. PD

Hit: CURSE + Charisma modifier unholy damage. Until the end of your next turn, the target is cursed, and if a nearby non-mook enemy loses hit points, the target also loses half that many hit points.

Miss: Unholy damage equal to your level

Epic feat: The effect now also triggers off mooks.

2E Updates

- Your warlock pact now has impact on icon relationships through the Faustian Bargain feature
- Curses are now until end of your next turn effects. No more save rolls.
- Blasts that had until end of next turn effects changed to curses
- Malediction now a talent, not a class feature
- The “vulnerable” condition changed so being cursed now gives +2 critical range as before, but it is no longer using the vulnerable keyword.
- Gain an additional talent at 6th level
- Hexes are now 1/arc instead of at-will
- Strikes replace weapon hexes
- 2E changes to ability score increases, multiplier changes
- Removed spell mastery (no more free feats).
- Reduced total number of spells to be in line with revised Wizard
- Changed damage progression to follow 2E WEAPON dice progression (bonus damage at epic level)
- Trimmed a lot of feats from spells to have only one feat per spell; mostly removed feats that were there for high-level damage progression which is now covered by better dice.
- Some spells swapped levels
- Added “hit point threshold” to many curses to reduce the potential of one-shotting bosses
- Curses now in line with other spells (using Charisma for attack and damage, miss damage = level)
